The poem below, which was first published in the Knickerbocker Magazine, is made up of air gle lines from twenty-five English and Amorican poets, be-ginning with Longfellow and ending with Byron. It would take some time to affix each writer's name to his line or lines, though the majority are, of course, we'l known:

——"Pearls at random strung, By future poets shall be sung."

- The night has come, but not too soon; Westward the course of empire takes it way; Ye banks and brace of bonnie Doon! Blue spirits and white, black spirits and gray.
- Rocked in the cradic of the deep, Old Casper's work was done; Figing on hollow reeds to his pent sheep, Charge, Chester charge! On Stanley, on!
- There was a sound of evelry by night, On Linden when the sun was low; A voice replied for up the hight, Tall caks from littlescorns grow.
- What if a little rain should say,
 I have not loved the world, nor the world me:
 Ah! well a day!
 Woodman, spare that tree!
- My heart leaps up with joy to see A primtose by the water's brim: Zaccheus he did climb the tree; Few of our youth could cope with him.
- The prayer of Ajax was for light, The light that never was on see or abore. Padding and beef make Eritons fight Nover more!
- Under a spreading classimat free, For hours the gither sat, I and my Annabel Le: A man's a man for a that
- Truth crushed to earh shall rise again, And waste its sweetness on the desert air. In thruder, lightning, or in rain, None but the brave deserve the fair.
- Tell me not in mournful numbers. The child is father of the man; Hush, 12y dear, lie still and alumber, They can conquer who believe they can.
- A change came o'er the spirit of my dream; Whatever is, is right; And things are not wast they seem; My native land good night!
